WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1744.

Prague, Auguſt 19.

ON Sunday a ſolemn Proceſſion was made by all Ranks and Degrees of Perſons in this City, in order to implore the Divine Clemency, at this critical Conjuncture. It is difficult to ſay, whether the Clergy, the Nobility, or the Populace, aſſiſted thereat with the greateſt Signs of Devotion. Our Gariſon is already about 10,000 ſtrong, and we have every Hour ſupplies of freſh Troops; inſomuch that we make no manner of Doubt, of our being able to defend ourſelves effectually againſt the Enemy, whenever they ſhall appear. We have, at preſent, no Accounts that can be depended upon, except from Luſatia, where a Body of 7000 Pruſſians arriv'd within theſe few Days; but no-body can tell which Way they are to continue their March. We daily arreſt Spies in different Diſguiſes. This Morning Three were taken; One an Italian, in the Habit of a Jew; another under the Diſguiſe of a Monk; a Third, who appeared to be a Stranger; and pretended he was going to Vienna. It is a little doubtful, whether any Saxon Troops will enter this Kingdom; but if they ſhould not, it is very certain that the Regular Troops of Militia we have, will enable us to keep the Enemy in Play, till the new Army arrives from Hungary; and we have very great Reaſon to believe, that a puiſſant Diverſion will be made in the King of Pruſſia's Dominions.

Extract of a private Letter from Paris, dated Auguſt 23, 1744.

'This Morning we received the following Letter from 'Metz, in Date the 15th. We are here, at this Juncture 'under inexpreſſible Concern. The King was exceeding 'bad about Midnight; about One in the Morning we ex'pected he would expire. He received the Sacraments 'that Night, and all the Family were of Opinion there 'were no Hopes. Between One and Two he had a con'ſiderable Evacuation; after which, he grew a little 'better, and has been mending ever ſince. His Majeſty 'has had his Bed made thrice, and bore his being up 'very well.

'His Majeſty is more a Hero than can be expect'd; 'the Marks he gave of his Piety and Probity were ſuch, 'as made all that were about him melt into Tears. He 'demanded Pardon for the Scandal he might have given, 'in the moſt moving Terms, before he receiv'd. The 'Ladies were already at the Diſtance of three Leagues 'from hence, yet he did not think that ſufficient. 'About Midnight the Biſhop of Soiſſon, his firſt Almoner, who lay at the Feet of his Bed, was called up, and 'ſoon after delivered himſelf to thoſe who were in the 'Preſence, in the following Words. Meſſieurs the Princes 'of the Blood, and Meſſieurs the great Officers of the 'Kingdom, the King, my Maſter, has commanded me 'to tell you, that to repair the great Scandal he has given, 'in having heard with Concern that the Ladies ——— 'and ——— are retired but three Leagues from hence, 'he thinks proper to declare, he has removed them 'from the Offices he had given them about the future 'Dauphineſs; and has commanded me to let the Dauphin 'know as much. He then turn'd about to the King, 'and ſaid, Sire, Is not this what your Majeſty ordered 'me to ſay? His Majeſty anſwered, It was; and added, 'my Pleaſure is, that they never return any more; let 'ſome-body go and ſignify to them my Order.

'On the 17th, 18th, 19th, 20th, and 21ſt, we received three or four Couriers a Day from Metz, with 'Advice, that the King grew better and better; which 'gave inexpreſſible Joy to all the Inhabitants of this 'City. The laſt Courier arrived on the 21ſt, at Even'ing, and he ſet out from Metz on the 19th, about 'Two in the Afternoon, and brought us the following 'Account.

'The King has ſlept nine Hours without Interruption, 'except the Time in which he eat two Porringers of 'Broth, and had his Bed made; his Sleep was ſound and 'natural, and his Headach quite gone off. His Pulſe 'is very little ſtronger than it ought to be. So conſide'rable a Change, at a Time when we had Reaſon to fear 'the Return of his Fever, ſeems to be a ſure Token of 'his Recovery; and there appears no Reaſon to ſuſpect 'a Relapſe. As the King grows better and better, and 'as he is, at this Inſtant, in a very ſound Sleep, I took 'this Opportunity of diſpatching an extraordinary Cou'rier.

'The Queen arrived on Monday at Metz, with the 'Princeſſes of France, and was a long time alone with 'the King. M. the Dauphin, arrived alſo the ſame Day, 'and was received by his Majeſty with the utmoſt Marks 'of Tenderneſs. The King was pleaſed to ſign, with 'his own Hand, a Letter written to the Queen of Poland, 'to inform her, that he is in a fair Way of doing well.'

Hague, September 2. All the Foreign Miniſters here are in extraordinary Motion, and we apprehend, that there is ſomething on the Carpet of the utmoſt Importance. According to the laſt Advices from Paris, a Report of Peace prevails ſtrongly there; and it is ſaid, that the Chancellor has written to his Majeſty, to beſeech him to reſtore Quiet to himſelf, and his People. It is alſo believed, that the Duke of Orleans will employ all his Intereſt, to enforce this Propoſition. The Baron de Reiſchah is daily in Conference with ſome or other of the States General; we are well aſſured, that in three Weeks time, there will be an Army in Bohemia ſufficient to look the King of Pruſſia in the Face; at the ſame time that Prince Charles covers the Hereditary Countries of the Queen of Hungary. All our Letters from Peterſbourg and Moſcow confirm the News publiſhed from thence, of the favourable Diſpoſitions of the Czarina towards her Majeſty of Hungery, and her Allies; and it is certain, that the Lord Tyrawley his Britannick Majeſty's Miniſter at that Court, has written to the Queen of Hungary, to inform her of the Intentions of that Court. An Expreſs arrived Yeſterday from the Rhine, with the Confirmation of Prince Charles's having repaſs'd the River with very conſiderable Loſs. All our Letters from Franckfort agree, that his Imperial Majeſty will ſpeedily leave that City, in order to put himſelf at the Head of the Army of the Empire, as it is called, which is to march towards Bavaria; but we are aſſured, that a certain great Prince, nearly related to his Imperial Majeſty, has written to him, on the Part of the Court of Vienna, in ſuch Terms, as may effectually convince him, that there is no Need of French Aſſiſtance to reſtore him to his Hereditary Dominions; and that the major Part of the Princes and States of the Empire are ſincerely diſpoſed to procure him all the Satisfact on he can deſire, by an amicable Accommodation of Differences, without the Interpoſition of any Foreign Court whatever. There are private Letters from Bourdeaux, which ſay, that they have juſt receiv'd Intelligence of the Engliſh having taken, and carried into Newfoundland, four French Prizes, very richly laden.

Laſt Monday the Commiſſioners of the Land Tax for the ſeveral Pariſhes in the City and Liberty of Weſtminſter, met at their reſpective Veſtry Rooms, to grant Warrants for impreſſing Men; and the ſame Night upward of 60 Perſons were ſecur'd, in order to be further examin'd.

He 'ſays, he is confirmed in this by a Phyſician of great Worth 'and Candor, who has great Opportunities of dealing in ſuch 'Caſes, by his Practice in Midwifery. See p. 182.
